

HIST 3321 : Liberal Learning Through the Ages

Liberal learning, study of the liberal arts, has been the hallmark of free, self-governing persons since Greek and Roman antiquity. This course will survey the meaning and relevance of liberal education as part of a flourishing human life, from the origin of the concepts to our own hyper-specialized scientific and technology-driven world of today

Credits 3

Course ID

009162

Requisites

HIST Upper-Div Requisites: Second-semester sophomore standing (45+ credit hours).

Semester Offered

Spring semester