

INST 4362 : Globalization and Gender Issues

This course examines the relationship between the globalization phenomena and issues related to gender treatment and equity. Primary emphasis will be granted to the effect of globalization on female labor. This topic will be explored in the context of socioeconomic development within and across developed and developing societies. .Major conceptual approaches to understand development will be addressed and assessed through quantitative and qualitative analyses. Prerequisite: 60+ credit hours

Credits 3

Course ID

006772

Requisites

INST 4362 Prerequisite: 60+ Hours