

JPII 5310 : Thomistic Personalism

This course seeks to explicate the philosophical project and method of Polish philosopher Karol Wojtyla/John Paul II (1920-2005) through (a) an explanation of the Thomistic character of his thought and the role of phenomenology in exploring the subjectivity of the person. In addition the course covers his critique of modern moral philosophy and underscores his distinctive approach to experience and subjectivity, especially in his understanding of freedom and rights. The focus will be on conscience, as the centerpiece of Person and Act and Veritatis Splendor ("The Splendor of Truth").

Credits 3

Course ID

008610

Requisites

JPII 5310 and higher Pre/Corequisites: JPII 5305

Semester Offered

Spring semester